

FOIL SUSPECTED ATTEMPT WRECK HOOVER TRAIN

HOOVER TELLS INSIDE STORY OF DAWES BANK

Shows How Democratic Speakers Have Distorted Facts

Aboard Presidential Special, enroute to St. Paul, Nov. 5—(AP)—President Hoover carried his final drive for re-election back into Illinois, toward Wisconsin and Minnesota, today after bidding for Missouri's support with the assertion that the Democrats are conducting a "campaign of avoidance" including "evasions" on the prohibition issue.

On his way to California to vote, the President headed today for St. Paul where he makes a major campaign speech tonight at 9:30 (CST) after an address at Madison, Wis., and ten rear platform appearances along the route.

From St. Paul, he will dash across the continent to his home in Palo Alto in order to vote on election day. Stops enroute to the coast will include a halt in Nevada, probably at Elko for a final nation-wide radio appeal election eve. The President will speak at Salt Lake City in the Mormon Tabernacle.

Invading Wisconsin today, the President enters a state in which some of the leading Republicans, of the Progressive wing, have declared for his opponent, Franklin D. Roosevelt. In Minnesota tonight he will find the Democrats drawing support from high figures in the Farmer-Labor party.

To Capacity Crowd
The Chief Executive spoke at St. Louis last night before a crowd that jammed the 12,000 seat Coliseum, after a strenuous day that started before breakfast and included a formal address at Springfield, Ill. Starting half an hour late because of his crowded program, the President was unable to finish within the time reserved on the radio and was cut off the air to allow Roosevelt to speak.

Discussing prohibition for the first time since his speech of acceptance, the President repeated that prohibition should be changed to eliminate "evils" and that states should be given control of the problem with protection from west states and provision against return of the saloon.

His proposal, he said "is the only practical common ground with adequate protection on which this whole question can reach solution."

Speaking of the Democrats, he said: "They know that their own Democratic strongholds in the south, if no other, will not accept the proposal for outright repeal of the 18th Amendment with the consequent return of the saloon, and its resultant lack of protection to dry states."

Financial Measures
As examples of what he called "the great constructive measures of the administration," Mr. Hoover told for the first time the story of the loan by the Reconstruction Corporation to the Dawes bank of Chicago and his negotiation of the one year moratorium on war debts.

"I would like to have you picture group of gentlemen sitting in the board room of the federal reserve bank in one of our important cities a thousand miles from Washington. Another similar group is seated in the board room of another federal reserve bank in a city some 260 miles from Washington. A group of advisers is seated with the President of the United States."

Banks Under Pressure
"During the preceding week there had been a general run upon the banks in one of these important cities. All of the banks had felt the pressure of these unreasonable withdrawals. On Saturday morning the situation had become critical in the extreme."

"The financial districts were thronged with excited crowds of frightened and hysterical depositors. They filled the lobbies of the banks and stood in long queues up on the sidewalks. When the doors were closed for the day, there were still crowds demanding their deposits. Throughout Saturday evening and Sunday panic increased, and began to spread like a contagion to the whole district."

"The banks were under heavy pressure because of the frightened depositors and the inability of the banks in the midst of the crisis to make a quick sale of their long term securities without such tremendous sacrifice as to imperil all of the depositors, or in turn to force the payment of notes of a sum of borrowers without in turn forcing them to sell their homes and business at half price."

Situation at Crisis

THE NEXT GOVERNOR.

The low prices on farm products and the general bad business conditions seem to have worked havoc on the reasoning powers of many voters this year. They believe they can improve conditions by voting another political party into power. They say that conditions could not be any worse. What they need to do before they go to the poll: is to do a lot of careful thinking.

Prosperity is coming back in these United States and if the Republican party is kept in office in state and nation the comeback will be rapid because the Republican party has the situation in hand and knows how to conquer it. Are we going to throw away all the advantage gained and turn to an untried inexperienced group of leaders and lose anywhere from a year to four years in this fight to get our state and nation back to normal times?

Another factor that confuses the voters in Illinois is the poisonous slander spread by the Chicago newspapers about former Governor Len Small, the Republican candidate for governor. Many people of the finest type have allowed themselves to be influenced by the cruelly false charges and innuendoes that have been brought against Len Small by his political enemies and that are being broadcast by his political opponents—charges that date back more than fourteen years, when he was state treasurer and put state money in the Grant Park bank and the Grant Park bank paid to the state the legal 2 per cent interest for the money, after posting adequate collateral as security and then loaned the money out to borrowers and profited by the difference between the 2 per cent paid the state and the interest rate charged their borrowers.

But all that time that the Grant Park bank was doing that, Dixon banks were doing the same identical thing, and so were banks all over Illinois and it was perfectly legal and proper. Here in Dixon our local banks have for many, many years, had state money on deposit and they paid the state the legal 2 per cent interest and they loaned that state money out to people in and around Dixon at 6 or 7 per cent and the banks profited by the four or five per cent difference and the stockholders of the banks got that profit and if Len Small was guilty of any wrong doing, why are not the stockholders in the banks of Dixon and hundreds of other cities and towns throughout the state?

When Len Small completed his term as state treasurer there appeared on the front page of the Chicago Tribune an article to the effect that the retiring State Treasurer, Len Small, had, during his term of office, turned into the state treasury of Illinois more interest money on public funds than any other state treasurer in the history of Illinois.

Len Small's offense was that later, after he had been elected Governor, he would not bow his head and bend his knee to the orders of the Chicago newspaper powers and when the then Attorney General Edward E. Brundage asked for an appropriation of something like one and one-half million dollars for the operation of his office, a stupendous and unheard of sum (to be used, it is presumed, for the building up of a political organization which would support Brundage for governor) Governor Small refused to sanction this atrocious raid on the taxpayers money and he vetoed a part of the appropriation. From that moment Len Small was a marked man. His political enemies, finding they could not rule him, set out to ruin him by fair means or foul and it could not be done fairly they used the foul means of the character assassin—a campaign of mud throwing and vilification that drove Governor Small's beloved wife to her grave, even though he was finally vindicated in the courts and later re-nominated and re-elected to the governorship of Illinois.

Governor Small gave Illinois eight years of splendid administration in Springfield. He did more for this state in the building of the world's finest hard road system, the building up of the state's charitable institutions, the cutting down of the tax rate and the general administration of public works that any governor in the history of the state.

Are we, of downstate Illinois, going to turn this state over to Cermak-bossed Cook County so that we may help Cook County pay its share of the millions of tax money it now owes the state?

Are we downstaters, whose prosperity and well-being depend upon the prosperity of the farmer, going to turn our backs on Len Small, who owns and operates and lives on a farm and who has eight successful years as governor to his everlasting credit, and put ourselves in the hands of a Chicago lawyer whose experience has been confined to a number of years on the probate bench?

Tony Cermak, who was chairman of the Cook County Board during the time that Wm. Hale Thompson was Mayor of Chicago, and who blames Chicago's financial ills on Thompson does not explain why Cook County finances got into such a mess while he was chairman of the board. Cermak is the father of Judge Horner's candidacy. Do we of downstate Illinois want the type of leadership that Chicago and Cook County now have extended to Springfield so that it may gather the entire state into its horrid grip?

The writer heard Len Small, the Republican candidate, at a very recent date, tell an inquirer "If anyone wants to know who my campaign sponsor and campaign manager is, tell them it is Len Small."

We of Lee County can best judge our safest course by reflecting on what Governor Small did for this county during his term of office. He made Dixon and Lee County the hub of a far reaching system of cement roads and he put two millions of dollars into the development of the Dixon State Hospital. He located the headquarters for the state highway engineers department for northwestern Illinois in Dixon. He saw to it that our highways were adequately manned by state police and that this county received its full share of benefits that other counties received.

Since Governor Small left office there has been practically no new work at the state hospital and the growth of the institution now requires many new buildings and improvements which Governor Small will provide if he is elected.

Lee County owes Len Small a splendid majority at Tuesday's election but The Telegraph insists that regardless of past proofs of friendship to this county every thinking voter should support Len Small because of the benefits that will come to us if he is elected and because of the grave dangers that may present themselves if he should be defeated.

Loyalty League Backs Project: Miller Is Again President

The annual meeting of the Dixon Loyalty League was held last evening at the city hall. The meeting was largely attended and many interesting subjects were discussed. Reports of several committees were read covering the month just closed and the five month period of the existence of the League, which showed the organization to be in excellent financial condition.

The election of officers for the ensuing year brought no change in the present personnel, all of whom were re-elected, as follows:

President—Charles E. Miller.
Vice-President—Ray S. Kline.
Secretary—Wm. Nixon.
Directors—George Netze, Wm. Nixon, Ray Kline, George Prescott, Harry Beard, J. Brady and Charles E. Miller.

Following the election of officers, the president announced the following committees to act for the month of December:

December Committees
Advertising—Ray Kline, George Prescott, John Fosselman, A. E. Marth and C. A. Mellett.
Prizes—William Nixon, Harold Coss, J. L. Glassburn and Charles E. Miller.

Tickets—Harry Beard, Victor Eichler and Forrest Suter.
Finance—James Brady, George Netze, Earl Buck, Clyde Carson, Walter Cromwell, William Cahill, William Crowl, H. H. Hulsart and Roy Plowman.

The special committee appointed at the last regular meeting to investigate the advisability of establishing a Community Kitchen made its report. It was unanimously voted to empower this committee to proceed with the plan and the kitchen will be opened as soon as possible after November 15.

The kitchen will be known as the Loyalty League Community Kitchen, and will be under the direct supervision of Frank A. Chiverton and his committee. It is planned to handle the distribution of soup and coffee only by ticket, these tickets to be placed in the hands of all members of the Loyalty League, police department, sheriff and Supervisor D. H. (Continued on Page 2)

G. O. P. CAMPAIGN CLOSES THIS EVE IN THIS COUNTY

Four Meetings Scheduled For Tonight:
In Nelson Friday

The Republican campaign in Lee County will draw to a close this evening with four mass meetings in various parts of the county. County Chairman H. C. Warner will conduct meetings this evening at Franklin Grove, Ashton, Compton and Lee. Speakers from the state Republican headquarters and county candidates will be present at each of the meetings.

Last evening, a well attended and interesting meeting was held at Nelson. Precinct Committeeman F. E. Fischel called the meeting to order and turned the program over to County Chairman H. C. Warner of Dixon, who spoke briefly reviewing the change of sentiment throughout the county resulting from the fine talks by President Herbert Hoover. Attorney Martin J. Gannon spoke for the national Republican ticket, devoting his remarks chiefly to a discussion of the tariff and the rigid restrictions that have been placed upon emigration by the Republican party. In concluding his interesting talk, Mr. Gannon said:

"The voters in this case are the jury. You have heard the testimony which has been submitted and next Tuesday you will retire to the voting booth, there to render your verdict from which there is no appeal."

Funeral Of Rev. Williford Friday

Funeral services for Rev. Ralph Williford, who passed away at his home in western Colorado last Sunday were held at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Oregon Friday afternoon. Rev. Holloway, a former pastor of the M. E. church, conducted the services, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Hyde. Mrs. Jane Harris Stiles sang very beautifully two hymns. The American Legion had charge of the services at the grave. Rev. Williford was a nephew of Charles Williford of this city and had served as pastor of a Methodist church in Colorado for the past six years. The large number of friends attending and the beautiful floral offerings attested the high esteem in which the young man was held. Sympathy is extended to the young widow and three children.

The total amount of German foreign indebtedness has been placed by the German statistical bureau at about 26,699,000,000 marks.

The per cent of children 5 to 17 years of ages enrolled in the public schools rose from 77.9 per cent in 1920 to 81.2 per cent in 1930.

NEGRO CAUGHT WITH CROWBAR ON N-W TRACKS

President Continues To Receive Great Ova-
tions Today

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 5—(AP)—Police and railroad detectives today questioned Henry Vance, 28, a Negro arrested at 4 A. M. by a railroad operative who suspected him of planning to tamper with the tracks over which President Hoover's train was scheduled to pass.

The man was carrying a crowbar of a type used in pulling spikes from railroad ties. He was picked up by Melvin Peterson, a special agent of the Northwestern railroad who was patrolling the tracks in advance of the President's train.

Vance told police he was returning the bar to the home of a friend, Hayes White, 55, and chose to walk along the railroad right of way because he was afraid of dogs. He denied he was preparing to remove spikes from the rails. White, he said, had taken the crowbar to Vance's home in Beloit at 8 o'clock the night before.

White was arrested and denied ownership of the bar. He was held today for further questioning.

Police said that a section house about a mile from the point where Vance was arrested was broken into during the night and a crowbar and large wrench were stolen.

University of Wisconsin Field House, Madison, Wis., Nov. 5—(AP)—President Hoover made his major bid for Wisconsin's support today in a campaign speech before a throng that filled this great athletic arena in the heart of the progressive Republican stronghold.

With Wisconsin's homecoming game against Illinois scheduled to begin shortly after the President's address, the state Capital was decorated and crowded with football fans on the arrival of Mr. Hoover after a morning of campaigning through Illinois and Wisconsin.

Crowds running into the thousands had greeted the President enroute as he carried on the campaign where he left off last night in St. Louis with an assertion that the Democrats were waging a "campaign of avoidances" including "evasions" on the prohibition question.

Given Great Ovation
The President was driven through flag-draped, crowd-lined streets past the state Capitol to the field house, almost three miles from the station. A 21-gun presidential salute was fired on the university campus as the President passed. The presidential couple were greeted by an organized college cheer that reverberated through the big field house as they entered. A white-clad cheer leader led the rally. Walter J. Kohler, Republican candidate for Governor introduced the President, praising his "leadership."

"He has strengthened our fundamental institutions and thus brought this country to a point where a sound recovery is definitely under way," Kohler said.

Bowing in acknowledgement of the applause that greeted his introduction, the President began his speech with a statement that he valued the "refreshment" that came from college institutions.

At the outset the President said he would rather discuss not so much campaign issues as "the fundamental principles for which America stands."

Big Crowds Gather

Thronged had gathered at all stations along the Northwestern railroad hoping to get a fleeting glimpse of the President as the train sped into the northwest. The first Wisconsin stop was at Beloit, where President Hoover addressed a crowd estimated by police at 30,000. He made another short talk here.

Earlier, Mr. Hoover told a throng of about 50,000 at the Rockford, Ill. railroad station that his administration's efforts against the depression were beginning to show "real results" since the Democratic House adjourned and "we have had a fair chance in a fair field."

Men Return To Work

He repeated that 1,000 men had gone back to work during the past four months and that more men were returning to their jobs at the rate of 500,000 a month.

Reviewing his attack upon Democratic tariff policies, the Chief Executive asserted that the tariff commission provided a court for which to alter import duties without congressional "log rolling," and that it was "proceeding as fast as possible in the investigation of rates."

Roosevelt, he declared, intends to destroy the commission. At the first stop of the day, in Freeport, Ill., at 7:40 A. M., Mr. Hoover did not speak, explaining that it was difficult to make many open air addresses when speaking indoors also during the day and night.

Someone called out "what's the matter with Hoover?" and those around the rear platform of his train (Continued on Page 2)

Important Personages; One Not So Important, but Forceful

By DALE HARRISON
New York, Nov. 5 — (AP) — The three who were shushed were Ferde Grofe, the music maker, and Joseph Lhevinne and Serge Rachmaninoff, a couple of piano players.

Here's the picture: Carnegie hall, Friday night. Paul Whiteman is on the podium leading his young men through the intricacies of a program of symphonic jazz.

The intermission has just ended and Mr. Michel Gusloff was drawing a bow on the "American Concerto" of which he is co-composer. Strolling down a corridor behind the circle of boxes were the Messrs. Lhevinne and Rachmaninoff, two gentlemen whose fingers have raced up and down many a keyboard from the same stage where jazz at that very moment was being put into circulation.

A round, beaming-faced gentleman met them. It was Ferde Grofe, who only a few minutes before had bowed from a box in acknowledgement of cheers for his
"Grand Canyon Suite."

Mr. Rachmaninoff was on record in the public prints as desiring to meet Grofe, having been impressed by Grofe's compositions. Mr. Lhevinne was not on record in the public prints, but he was glad to see Mr. Grofe, too.

The gentlemen effected introductions and they began consulting in what they probably would call pianissimo agitato crescendo accelerando fortissimo. Meanwhile Mr. Whitehead was out there on the good old podium and Mr. Gusloff's chin was taking a firmer hold on the fiddle as the "American Concerto" swung along.

The conversation was rapidly approaching the kaffeeklatch stage when an usher approached them. She didn't know who they were, or she didn't give a whoop.
If one of them happened to be the composer of arelude in C sharp minor, another happened to be a high priest of the keyboard and the third one of the leading American modernists, she should worry. That was their business.
Her's was shushing.

She drew a deep breath. She looked them in their respective eyes.

Mr. Gusloff on the stage went into a presto and Mr. Whitehead took a firmer grip on the music rack.

The usher said:
"S-h-u-s-h!"
The Messrs. Lhevinne, Grofe
and Rachmaninoff, slunk away, they didn't even pause for a
"please to have met youse."

Death of Belle Bennett, Actress

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 5 — (AP) — A nervous breakdown suffered two years ago led to the death last night of Belle Bennett, a comparatively young actress who gained fame as the portray of mother roles on the screen. She was 39 years old, but appeared much younger in real life.

Dr. Leon Tibber, who attended the actress, said death was caused by general carcinomatosis, a form of cancer. At her bedside when she died was her son Theodore Macy. Her husband, Fred Win-
room shortly before death occured.

Miss Bennett climbed to stardom in the films from a girlhood career under "the big top." She was born in Milada, Minn., the daughter of Billie Bennett, circus owner. She first appeared before the public at the age of 13 as a trapeze performer.

The mother role in "Stella Dallas" typed her for the remainder of her career. Thereafter she appeared in "Mother Machree,"
"Battle of the Sexes," "The Iron Mask," "The Queen of Burlesque," and "Reputation."

Miss Bennett was twice married.
Her first husband was William Macy of La Crosse, Wis.

Mrs. Frank Sproul Hostess to W. M. S.
Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. Frank Sproul, 509 E. Mc-Kinney St., was hostess to the Women's Missionary Society of the Christian church Thursday afternoon. Twenty four ladies of that organization were present to enjoy the hospitality of the home and to participate in the regular monthly program of the society.

Mrs. Ward Hall led in the devotional period with a very helpful program of worship. The hostess, Mrs. Sproul, was also presentation leader. She was assisted in the program and study period which centered upon "The American Indian," by Mrs. Fred McCordie, Mrs. George Nettz, Mrs. J. E.
Newcomb and Mrs. Clinton A.
Rhodes. In the absence of Mrs. A.
S. Ferr, who was detained by illness, Mrs. F. W. Peckham acted as pianist. Mrs. H. W. Stauffer was assistant hostess. A delicious luncheon was served at the close of the program and a delightful social hour enjoyed.

At the business session presided over by Mrs. J. A. Barnett two items of business were decided upon which will focus the attention of the society for the next few weeks. On Friday, Nov. 18, all the ladies will bring home-baked cookies to the church and a box will be forwarded to the Christian Orphans Home at St. Louis. The committee in charge of this service are, Mrs. H. W. Stauffer, Mrs.
O. D. Planingam and Mrs. Ward Hall. In conjunction with the Missionary Guild and the other missionary organizations of the church, Women's Missionary Day, Dec. 11, will be observed with a special program. Miss Helen Spaulding, of Bloomington, state secretary, will be the guest speaker.

Guests of the occasion were Mrs. W. G. Wells, president of the Women's Missionary Guild Mrs. Nelson of Minnesota, sister of Mrs. F. W. Peckham and the two daughters of Mrs. Fred Mc-Cardie.

THE COUNTY TICKET.

Normally, in Lee County, a Republican nomination for county office means election, because Lee County is normally Republican by a heavy majority. Democratic opposition to the county ticket is usually merely a matter of form. But this year the Republicans of Lee County must give loyal support to the entire ticket, not only congressional, state and national, but the county ticket as well, if the county is to stay Republican because the Democrats are waging a serious campaign for at least two and possibly three county offices.

Edwin S. Rosecrans, Republican candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court; Mark C. Keller, Republican candidate for State's Attorney and L. B. Neighbor, Republican candidate for County Surveyor, all have opposition on the Democratic ticket.

These three Republican candidates should be re-elected. They have all three given a high character of public service in the administration of their offices and the voters know, without a question of doubt, that their offices will continue to be operated with the maximum of efficiency, economy and honesty if they are retained in their respective positions.

If honesty, economy and good service to the public mean anything to the voters of Lee County these Republican candidates deserve to be rewarded by re-election by a big majority.

ALLEN FOR CONGRESS.

Leo E. Allen of Galena, an ex-soldier and a man of fine character and ability, is the Republican candidate for Congress from this, the 13th Illinois district. He should be elected. Republican policies cannot be carried out in Washington to their best advantage without a Republican Congress to support them. Give your vote to Leo Allen.

FRED E. STERLING.

Lee County voters will not forget that the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor is Fred E. Sterling of Rockford, formerly of Dixon. Fred Sterling was born in Dixon and has the highest regard for the county of his birth. In the event of the Governor's office becoming vacant for any reason the Lieutenant Governor becomes Governor. Fred Sterling's fine long record of splendid service in public office entitles him to re-election.

VOTE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN.

The Telegraph believes that the voters at Tuesday's election can best serve their county, state and nation by putting a cross in the circle at the top of the Republican ticket and thereby voting a straight Republican ticket.

We believe that this election marks a crisis in the history of the United States and that the welfare of the nation and every individual citizen hangs in the balance and that only the continuance of the Republican party in office can save us from great suffering and misery all over this land.

Vote the straight Republican ticket.

LIVING IN A GLASS HOUSE.

In some of his speeches Candidate Roosevelt has had a good deal to say about the "international bankers gypping the unsuspecting American public with worthless foreign securities," and has bitterly criticised the Hoover administration for its alleged failure to stop the international bankers from selling to the people foreign securities that were going to fall in value.

Gov. Roosevelt made those speeches early in his campaign. He has not made them since he visited San Francisco and was confronted there with an advertisement in the San Francisco Chronicle, reproduced from the files of that paper. This advertisement which originally appeared October 12, 1922, was headed "German Marks," and was inserted by "United European Investors, Ltd., Franklin D. Roosevelt, President." The advertisement offered for sale to the investing public "Foreign Bonds and Monies" either for cash or on the installment plan, and particularly referred to German Marks which were offered at a price of $200 for one million, and to German bonds, the buyers of which should "participate in the large earnings and dividends of German industries," etc.

So Gov. Roosevelt was at one time an "international banker" himself, and according to what he now says was one of those who should have been suppressed by the Government. And he was dealing in German marks and bonds in 1922 that were altogether the most worthless foreign securities ever foisted upon the American public. Within five months after this Roosevelt advertisement appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle, German marks, which the advertisement offered at $200 for one million, dropped to such a figure that it took 50 BILLION marks to buy a loaf of bread in Germany. Chester H. Rowell, after seeing the reproduction of this Roosevelt advertisement in the Chronicle, wrote to the paper saying he was in Germany about the time the advertisement originally appeared, and that he had occasion to spend 2½ cents, American money, in a hotel. He tendered an American quarter and received 250,000,000 marks in change!

In other words, within a few months after the Roosevelt international banking company offered to sell German marks at $200 for a million, they had become worse than worthless.

Of course Gov. Roosevelt had no intention of "gypping" the unsuspecting American public. He doubtless did not know that the monies and securities he was offering for sale were going to explode into thin air.

But in the light of his own experience would it not be fairer, not to say decenter, for the Democratic nominee to avoid charging other international bankers with deliberate intent to rob the people, and to avoid using innuendoes and insinuations that virtually accused the Government of the United States of guilty participation in the robbery.

People who live in glass houses—!

PAPERS RALLY IN SUPPORT OF LEN SMALL.

Reflecting public opinion, the press in all parts of the state is giving whole-hearted editorial commendation in favor of Len Small for governor. The editorial reprinted below is typical of many. It is taken from the columns of the Batavia Herald, which in turn credits it to the Ogle County (Oregon, Ill.) Republican.

"This newspaper supported Len Small for governor in the primary and has supported him each time he has been a candidate for a state office in Illinois. Regardless of all that has been said concerning Len Small, in spite of the bitter and measly attacks made on him by the Chicago Tribune, we are still of the opinion that Len Small made a good governor during his tenure of office and will do so again if elected to the highest office in the state next fall.

"Len Small has always stood for the common people against the big newspapers, the big interests and certain political jackals who have ever been willing to grab everything in sight. In spite of all the bitter attacks the common people of Illinois still have faith in Len Small. They like his simplicity, they admire his home life and they know that were any of the bitter attacks made on him true that his home community, Kankakee, would be among the first to turn him down. Instead of turning Len Small down, Kankakee county gave him a huge majority, and the best recommendation that any man can carry with him is that of his neighbors and friends. Those who reside near a man know him best, and if in all the years nothing has occurred to shake their faith in him then he must have qualities which are outstanding and tie him to them.

"If Len Small, downstate candidate, is elected governor of Illinois, the voters downstate can be assured of one fact and that is that Chicago, Cook county, and the Chicago Tribune and all others of that class will not run Illinois."

That not only do Republican newspaper editors, but Democratic ones as well, favor Len Small for governor, is seen in the following brief article which appeared recently in the Bunker Hill Gazette-News, under the heading "Thanks, 'Prone'."

"Our old friend, 'Prone' Preston, editor and publisher of the Gillespie News (Dem.), commended us editorially in his paper this week for the stand we took in the support of the Hon. Len Small for governor. We picked the man who we honestly believe to be the best fitted to fill the executive's chair at the state house. We have not forgotten that Len Small lifted us out of the mud, and if we had backed any other candidate on the ticket we would have shown that we were ungrateful for this act on the part of Mr. Small.

"Len Small made a good governor and we are not unmindful of the fact."

HOW ABOUT IT, MR. ROOSEVELT?

According to Hemming S. Nelson of Lake Lillian, one of ten farmers' union leaders who conferred with Gov. Roosevelt in his private car when the Governor was in Sioux Falls last Thursday, the Democratic presidential nominee gave these farm leaders assurance he would stand for legislation greatly inflating the currency. Nelson says that Gov. Roosevelt agreed to favor the Frazier bill to inflate the currency by the issue of $5,000,000,000 in "greenbacks" or Treasury notes to refinance all farm loans at 1½ per cent interest; the Thomas bill, under which the Federal Government would fix the prices of farm commodities according to "cost of production"; the Wheeler bill to remonetize silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and the Patman bill for the immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus through the issuance of $2,000,000,000 in new currency.

These are startling statements, yet they are given out to the press by a responsible man, one of the leaders of a national farm organization. Gov. Roosevelt has never pledged himself in any public speech to such a program, as Mr. Nelson testifies he gave approval in this private conference. What will he say now? Will he deny the accuracy of Mr. Nelson's report, or will he take the public into his confidence and tell the whole world what he is said to have told these ten farm leaders?

How about it, Mr. Roosevelt? If you are going to favor the issue of $7,000,000,000 in fiat currency and the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 in case of your election to the Presidency the people have a right to know it.

How about it?

MEAT ON THE TABLE.

Meat on the table is no novelty to American working people.

At the depth of the depression from which we are now happily emerging, it was no novelty.

Possibly a little less at times.

With most of the workers of Europe it is a novelty. It marks the feast day.

It is unknown to the peons of Mexico, the slave labor of Africa, the coolie labor of Asia, the God forsaken convict camps of Communist Russia.

Meat is no novelty on the table of the American worker, because he is the best paid worker in the world.

He is the best paid worker in the world because he has the richest market in the world—the American market.

Under Republican laws that market has been reserved for American workers by Republican tariffs.

Those Tariffs the Democratic candidate for President stands pledged to destroy. Every candidate for House or Senate is under the same pledge.

If successful, they will throw those markets open to the products of the underfed of the world.

The Democrats promise competition.

That could mean but three things—

Fewer jobs.
Lower wages.

Less meat, possibly no meat on the table, for even those who have jobs.

That's not a threat.

It's a promise—probably the only one of many the Democrats will keep, if by any accident, they are victorious on November 8th.

Pike's Peak has lost four inches in height during the past year as the result of a lack of rainfall, the ice on its crest having melted that much. We suppose that this "depression" too will be laid at the door of the Republicans by the Democrats.

Will you vote under the emblem of the Pork Barrel?

In times like these, it behooves us to be Hoover.

Save a year—re-elect President Hoover.

The chickens that were tossed right in the chicken crate set up a din. They cackled and they crowed until the farmer cried, "Hey, boys! You're starting now to pant and puff. I think that you have caught enough fine chickens to fill up the crate. Just listen to their noise!"

"The crate top then was put on tight and everything seemed quite all right, until the horse began to neigh. 'Hey, stop it!' Scouty cried. 'The farmer's feed you straw and hay, so you must help him out today. You're going to take away Duncy and the chickens on a ride.'"

This seemed to calm the horse a bit. It said, "All right! I'm feeling fit. Just tell me where we're bound and I'll sail up in the air. I'll gladly help the farmer out, if I know what it's all about. To do a favor in return for his seems only fair."

By this time Duncy was all set and he exclaimed, "Come on, let's get away upon this little trip. The thought fills me with cheer.

"The farmer's told me where to go and I can find the place, I know. It's by a little red schoolhouse that's 'bout a mile from here."

Then, up into the air they flew.

The flying horse and Duncy knew that they both would enjoy the trip and nothing would go wrong.

However, when up in the air, there came a very sudden scare and Duncy then found that the crate top wasn't very strong.

The chickens in the wooden crate apparently just couldn't wait until they reached their destination. Out the whole bunch flew.

"Tis well we're not high off the ground," cried Duncy. "They can flap around until they all land safely. Gee! What are we going to do?"

The Mills of the Gods grind slowly. They take no notice of our puny haste. Indeed, there are advanced scientific thinkers who believe that the Universe is definitely antagonistic to man and that his presence here is a complete accident. Far too much energy is being spent by man expanding the realm of his material power and far too little in the acquisition of those more exquisite graces which derive their well being from his ethical urge. Until he can be urged to discard the muck-rake, little or nothing has been done to earn our gratitude.

FRENCH DESIGNERS RISE TO THE OCCASION!

Fall Showings Reveal Ingenuity, But Lack Ostentation of Former Years

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
(NEA Service Writer)

Paris — The fall showings now prove that the genius of French creators has been put to a severe test this season.

Difficult business condition have made buyers very critical but the Parisian coutour was prepared for this and the result is that this period will probably be known as one combining the greatest ingenuity in presenting fashions at once new and ingenious, but lacking the ostentation of past prosperous years.

That chic can be achieved without the adjunction of masses of fur trimming is being very cleverly demonstrated in the more practical street clothes. Even in the more formal models, if fur is not spared, it is used to the very best advantage and made to give maximum results with what previously would have been considered minimum volume.

The Directoire, or princess line, seems firmly established. Redfern sponsors it almost exclusively throughout his collection. Nearly all his models are devoid of belts, and fit the figure to the neckline with fulness introduced very gradually to the hemline.

Skirts here, in fact, are a shade narrower and shorter than last season, the scant fulness assuming the form of pleats and inserted godets rather than relying on the bias cut.

Wider Shoulder Lines
A great deal of attention, on the other hand, has been bestowed on bodices and sleeves. Redfern sponsors an even broader shoulder line than before, enhanced by sleeves deriving their inspiration from sixteenth century modes. Fur collars on coats extend spirally down the sleeve as far as the elbow.

Dresses for afternoon wear show clever yoke effect at the front or back and slashed sleeves in vivid colors and contrasting materials, such as coral and black, light and dark blue, green and black.

Matching ensembles, that is, dresses of the same shade as the coat are back again with coral and brown leading for informal wear. Velvet seems to be a close competitor of the new wools for formal afternoon coats and plush velvets are obviously going to occupy quite an important place in this fall's fashion scheme.

Short, jaunty bolero jackets or capes accompany the new wool street dresses, which are devoid of trimming or feature Directoire revers, labots or bib collars of self material. Lingerie trimmings seem to have suffered a total eclipse. Muffs and other varieties of handbags are also scarce.

Lace Vies With Velvet
Redfern's evening dresses continue to favor the form-fitted hip line but they evidence much less fulness than we had grown accustomed to. Lace vies with velvet in popularity and several of the former showed velvet trimmings in the form of torqued belts and bows.

WHAT THE COURT SAID IN THE LEN SMALL INTEREST MATTER

DID LEN SMALL EVER TAKE ONE PENNY OF THE STATE'S MONEY?

That is the primary question that interests the public.

Years of crimination by the Tribune and Daily News, by insinuation and innuendo, have embedded in the public mind that Len Small fraudulently appropriated the State's money to his own account.

It was through this baseless sentiment without one iota of evidence on which to predicate a charge that Len Small was indicted. He was tried in a Criminal Court and was acquitted. Len Small's innocence of any crime was thus established.

Thereafter, civil proceedings were instituted in the Circuit Court of Sangamon County to recover the funds which it was alleged Small secured fraudulently through his connivance in the handling of state funds with the Grant Park Bank, a private bank owned by Edward C. Curtis and Verne S. Curtis.

Because of the intimate relation between the two families the Small and the Curtises, Len Small knew and had always known of their business affairs, including the Grant Park Bank. He had always thought it was a bank under the law, and still thinks it was a bank under the law. When he became State Treasurer, he deposited a part of the State's funds in their bank. The manner of handling deposits of the State funds in the Grant Park Bank was the same as the handling of deposits of State funds in other and numerous banks used as State depositories. The Grant Park Bank paid the usual rate of interest, to-wit: 2 per cent, as it came due, which interest Len Small turned into the State Treasury and received his receipt from the State Auditor. At the end of the term of Len Small, as Treasurer, he turned over certificates of deposit on the Grant Park Bank which were approved by the State Auditor and turned over to Len Small's successor who accepted them and continued to use the Grant Park Bank as a State depository during his term of office.

These court proceedings were not instituted until several years after Len Small's term as State Treasurer had expired.

In the first hearing of the case the Court decided to and did, enter a decree that all the interest earned by the Grant Park Bank on the funds of the State over and above the 2 per cent in-

New colors and handsome hand-work join to make winter Paris clothes lovelier than ever. (Lower) Redfern makes a smartly tailored two-piece beige wool sports dress and uses beige and red wool for the hand-worked yoke which gives the dress interesting lines. Short sleeves are good this winter. So is the inverted box pleat in both the back and front of the skirt. (Right) Fabric collars on wool coats are something new. Vera Borea uses rich yellow chamol for this new upstanding collar, giving chic to a stunning rich yellow wool coat.

A brown lace model was worn over a pink satin slip and was completed by a tango colored velvet belt and a tangerine lace had a twin torqued effect at the waist in beige velvet.

Aubergine, amethyst, violet and black and white are the colors featured by this house for both day and evening wear.

Vera Borea's collection offers a great many novel features, especially in her color combinations. Her Potter's Clay, a dull brown beige and Scarabee, a deep blue green are sure to be popular as they are becoming to most coloring.

Grey, used in conjunction with vivid red, green, blue and brown, scarab and red and a somewhat daring, but very successful combination of green and brick are outstanding points.

Pleats on the Increase
There are less bias effects in this young designer's collection than last season and more pleats, skirts being generally flat on the back with pleats or other form of fulness massed at the front for sport and street clothes.

Suit jackets are hip length and fitted, no longer double breasted but instead featuring important revers and interesting fastenings. No buttons but a number of amusing fastenings among which are a miniature saddle girth and long flat sateen pin broaches.

Blouses are of the tuck in variety with unstitched inverted pleats at the back and sometimes in the front also, or worn over the skirt and showing below the bolero jacket. Those of the vest persuasion have elongated points back and front which strike a very new note.

Borelaxtex is a new material with an elastic stretch which Borea has reserved for her exclusive use and which she shows in the guise of intriguing little sweater jackets buttoning closely to the throat, and of course, in the gayest colorings compatible with the season.

Simpler Sleeves Favored
Detached panel effects, cross belt arrangements, simple sleeves, encrusted knots and ribbon trimmings are afternoon features and the waistline in these clothes is lower, although few belts are seen. Skirt lengths are perhaps longer here than last season, with evening dresses all floor length and formal afternoon models reaching almost to the ankle.

Sleeves in this house are inclined to be simple and short sleeves still prevail in spite of the season for sports and some afternoon models. There are several end-of-the-day dresses that are interesting and evidence special study on the part of the creator. Nearly all have little caps or casques that reveal a semi-decollete neckline to the dress which make them eminently suitable for informal dinner or bridge parties.

Velvet shares favors in Vera Borea's collection with some interesting new wools in the new color or corrugated effects. Among the new fabrics of the velvet variety are the cotele, cobra, jersey and veloutine. Tweeds are striped and there are less diagonal effects. Leather fashions many trimmings in the shape of collars and revers.

this fact was considered without prejudice to the defendants." ....

In order to determine the amount of profits made by the Grant Park Bank on the State's funds the Court appointed accountants to audit the accounts of Len Small and the Curtises. This was the first authentic detail investigation made of these transactions by an authorized independent auditing agency.

When full and complete knowledge of all the detail as to all the transactions between the Grant Park Bank and the State Treasurer was at hand and testified to by the auditors appointed by the Court the Master in Chancery (who had taken all the testimony in the prior hearings in this case) was confronted with the irrefutable fact that there was not one particle of evidence in any of the testimony presented to him, that in any sense of the word indicated that Len Small had ever received one penny of fraudulent money from or through the Grant Park Bank. There was no other course for the Master in Chancery to pursue except to stipulate as he did.

Stipulation of the Decree of the Sangamon County Circuit Court, where the original proceedings were instituted:

"It is further stipulated and agreed by and between the parties hereto THAT THE EVIDENCE IN THIS CASE FAILS TO ESTABLISH THAT THE DEFENDANT, LEN SMALL, RECEIVED ANY SUM OR SUMS OF MONEY, whatsoever as interest upon public funds for or during his term of office as State Treasurer, except such sums as he has already accounted for and paid into the State Treasury of this State, and that the liability of the said defendant, Len Small, in this case is solely for interest received by the other defendants herein; and it is agreed that a finding to this effect be embodied in the report of the Master in Chancery and the decree of the court herein."

The above stipulation became a part of the final decree of the Court in the Len Small case.

It is clear from the above stipulation that the Court could not have known whether or not a fraud had been perpetrated between Len Small and the Curtises until after the report was made by the auditors.

It was not until after the investigation in the affairs of the Grant Park Bank by the auditors appointed by the Court, that the Court changed front as to Len Small. In its final decree, it absolved Len Small from the previous charge of fraud.

When the Supreme Court decreed that the Grant Park Bank was not a bank, it at the same time decreed that the bank was not entitled to the profits over and above the 2 per cent paid to the Treasury and that is must turn over all of the interest earned on the State's funds. Therefore the Court rendered a judgment against the Curtises for the total amount of the earnings over and above the 2 per cent on the State's money deposited in the Grant Park State Bank. This was the Supreme Court decision.

It matters not whether the opinion of the Supreme Court be right or wrong on any question or matter that it may have under consideration, when it finally renders a decision, it becomes a rule by which the citizens of Illinois must proceed, whether every citizen in the State concurs with it or not. Therefore, whether it be right or wrong, Len Small and the Curtises were bound by it and were forced to obey it.

After the judgment was rendered, it was found that the estate of Edward C. Curtis (who was now deceased) had been probated before the judgment was rendered, therefore, exempt from execution. The other partner and owner of the Grant Park Bank, Verne S. Curtis, was without funds.

Then the question arose, "Who was obligated to pay the judgment for the profits earned on the State's funds by the Grant Park Bank?"

Our Constitution holds the State Treasurer liable for every dollar belonging to the State. By the Supreme Court decision, all of the profits earned by the Grant Park Bank on the State's money belonged to the State. When it was impossible to collect the money from the Curtises who had received the profits, the obligation to account for the funds reverted to the State Treasurer.

It was because of this decree of the Supreme Court that could not have been foreseen by anybody that Len Small became legally liable as State Treasurer under the Constitution, for the judgment rendered against the Curtises, who had received the profits from the Grant Park Bank.

It was owing to this LEGAL liability, that notwithstanding the fact that the Court had found that he had NEVER TAKEN ONE PENNY OF THE STATE'S FUNDS, he was required to, and did pay, $650,000 into the State Treasury.

If Len Small had not raised the money to pay the judgment affirmed by the Supreme Court, his bondsmen who had assured the State to the extent of $500,000 would have been required to pay to the extent of their guarantee.

The final query is, "Where did Len Small get the money to pay?" His thousands of friends came to the rescue. Forty thousand of them sent him $1.00 each. The balance of the contributions ranged as high as $2,000 each, that I personally know of. The balance, he borrowed by mortgaging his property.

(EDITOR'S NOTE) The accuracy of these statements may be verified by referring to Volume 319, Part IV of the "Illinois Official Reporter" of Feb. 17, 1930; and the Stipulation of the Final Decree in the Circuit Court of Sangamon County in Chancery General No. 40084, and the office of the State Auditor.)

smoked bear meat.

A boy of 18, one of a party of hunters, brought down a bear weighing about 400 pounds. The animal was skinned and its meat was "jerked."

The process of jerking consists in cutting the meat in strips and smoking and drying it in the sun. The members of the boys' family partook of the jerked bear meat and every one of them became ill, the boy succumbing to his trichiniasis infection.

Trichiniasis is caused by a small worm measuring from 1 1/2 to 4 millimeters in length. The disease is contracted by eating insufficiently cooked or raw meat.

The most common source of infection is improperly cooked pork, but other animals may become infected and man may acquire the infection through eating the animal's meat.

The worm is present in the infected meat in the form of a larva, that is, an undeveloped worm.

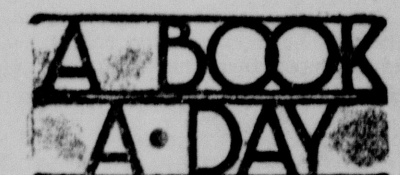

In the larval stage the worms are small, measuring less than a millimeter in size. In the process of digestion, the larvae are liberated from their cysts and begin their cycle of development within the intestinal tract. They grow to maturity within two or three days and reproduce.

The newly born worms pass by way of the lymph spaces through the circulatory system into various parts of the body and then actively work their way into the voluntary muscles of the body, where they in turn wait for a new opportunity to undergo their normal cycle of development.

It has been estimated that larvae of the trichinella worm can remain alive in muscle tissue for as long as 30 years.

There is no specific treatment for this disease. Its prevention requires the thorough heating of all uninspected meats.

"The time came and the youth of the Nation became its manhood in a day. All the little tasks of business with which grey haired Commerce had entrusted Youth were dropped, and toils and burdens, too great for maturity to endure, were taken up by boys who ventured whither they neither knew nor cared. And some came back and some remained. And a glory not of conquest, and not of gain, but of furtherance of right and justice shines upon America for all the world to see and to wonder and to learn. #### However Twice As Many Undefeated Teams Not In Danger

New York, Nov. 5 — (AP)—November's first series of crucial football engagements brought threat of disaster to the title hopes of a half dozen of the nation's leading eleven today but found twice as many others in little, if any, immediate danger.

Where Pittsburgh and Brown in the east, Virginia Poly and perhaps Louisiana State in the south, and Southern California in the far west expected to be tested to the utmost, a clear path seemed to lie immediately ahead of Colgate, Columbia, Michigan, Purdue, Notre Dame, Texas, Tennessee, Auburn and Utah.

Pitt and Brown battled Pennsylvania and Holy Cross at Philadelphia and Providence respectively in the twin head-liners of an eastern program that also included such other pivotal duels as Army and Harvard, Columbia and Navy and Boston College and Villanova. New York gained a virtual strangle hold on inter-sectional interest with the Fordham-St. Mary's and Georgia-New York University clashes in which the invaders were favored in each instance. Colgate anticipated no particular trouble with Mississippi College and Syracuse and Penn State were favored over Oglethorpe and Sewanee respectively.

Michigan "Hot" Michigan, unbeaten and untied, was a "hot" choice over Indiana in the Big Ten race and Purdue likewise seemed to pack entirely too much power for Chicago. Wisconsin and Illinois and Northwestern and Ohio State were paired in other games.

The other two members of the Big Ten, Minnesota and Iowa, had outside competition. The Gophers, showing improvement at a faster rate than any team in the Big Ten, figured to be up to four touchdowns better than Mississippi, while Iowa didn't look strong enough to handle Nebraska's versatile attack.

Virginia Poly, one of the four unbeaten and untied eleven in Southern Conference ranks, tackled a crippled Alabama eleven that nevertheless was given almost an even chance of winning. "Biff" Jones' Louisiana State Tigers took on South Carolina and were ready for trouble. Tennessee and Auburn had visions of easy triumphs over Mississippi State and Howard respectively.

In Big Six Loop The Big Six race found Oklahoma's Sooners tackling Frank Carideo's hapless Missouri Tigers and Kansas State a heavy choice over Iowa State. Kansas and Nebraska bid for inter-sectional honors but the former had small hopes of stopping Notre Dame's irate Ramblers. Nebraska, however, was expected to push over Iowa without trouble.

Southern California clashed with California in the most important battle on the west coast with the Trojans' undefeated record at stake. Stanford and Washington, Oregon State and Oregon, and Washington State and Idaho were other conference pairings.

Texas anticipated few uneasy moments with Baylor in the southwest where Texas A. & M. was the choice over Southern Methodists and Rice the favorite over Arkansas. Texas Christian, co-leader with Texas of the conference, played a non-conference game with Simmons yesterday winning 27-0. Utah seemed a certain victor over Colorado University in the Rocky Mountain group.

'GRUDGE' BOUT TO BE FEATURE OF DIXON SHOW

Bill Davis To Meet Snooks Gordon On Thursday Eve

Boxing fans of Dixon and vicinity will have an opportunity to witness a real grudge battle next Thursday evening, the head line attraction of the six bout card to be held at the Dixon Athletic club's arena on Ottawa avenue when "Snooks" Gordon of Peoria will step into the ring opposing Billy Davis of this city. In a telephone message to Matchmaker Ed Hooker this morning, Gordon is quoted as saying that he was ready and very willing to meet Davis at Dixon or any other place. Both of these contestants are in the welterweight division. The remainder of the program will be announced early next week.

CANZONERI IS VICTORIOUS IN PETROLEE FIGHT

Champion Won Dozen Of Fifteen Rounds Of Their Scrap

New York, Nov. 5 — (AP)—It appeared today that the fighting Petrolles of North Dakota have had enough of Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, to last them for a long time.

Billy, the pride of the clan, took up the fight last night before a crowd of 19,000 in Madison Square Garden and ran a poor second to the titleholder in 15 bruising but somewhat one-sided rounds. He did much better than brother Frankie, who was knocked out by Canzoneri, but Billy was badly cut, battered and thoroughly outclassed by the barrel-chested little Italian whose features mark him as a miniature Babe Ruth.

The fight drew a "gate" of $78,000, one of the biggest for the Garden in two years.

Canzoneri's victory, in defense of the title he won two years ago from a single punch, was so decisive that the unanimous decision of Referee Gunboat Smith and the two judges was formality. The champion, on the Associated Press score-sheet, carried off 12 of the 15 rounds. Petrolle was credited with two, the eighth and tenth, while the first was even.

The veteran Fargo Express, although he occasionally connected, as a mark for Tony's stream of left hooks and overhand rights. He was wobbly under the fusillade his right eye was closed, his already battered features cut and bleeding. The only time he left his feet, however, was when the force of a missed left swing sent him floundering to the floor momentarily in the final round.

Petrolle's lack of stamina in the last five rounds indicated the possible effects of making the lightweight limit, which he did by a shade, at 134 1-2 pounds. Canzoneri weighed 132.

Brief Summary of Last Night's News

By The Associated Press

ILLINOIS—Joliet—Homer Cook, 20, held in the Joliet city jail, has found an unique use for his cell cot. He dismantled the cot, took one of the steel legs and using it as a bridge pounded out a hole in the brick wall of the jail. When discovered, he had made a hole nearly large enough to permit his escape.

Chicago—Miss Catherine Baltz, 18, Joliet, christened the dairy Building at the Chicago Century of Progress, with a gourd of milk which she poured on to a steel beam of the structure. During the dedicatory addresses Miss Baltz, who was 1932 milking champion of the Chicago metropolitan area, milked a cow.

Chicago—William McDaniels, in whose possession police say they found a quantity of dynamite shortly after the home of Judge John P. McGorty was bombed, was bound over to the grand jury on charges of possessing explosives and conspiracy to transport explosives. Police have sought to connect him with the McGorty bombing in which a boy and a girl were injured.

Chicago—The Gebardi family, better known in police circles as "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn and his "Blonde Alibi" had another notation on their police records today. Mrs. Gebardi was fined $20 and assessed costs of $5 for speeding.

East Vaughan, N. M.—Earl van Noy's East Alton, Ill., identified the body of a man slain and killed here Wednesday night as he was seeking to break into a store as that of his brother, James, 25.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

All sorts of reasons have been advanced for the fact that Pitt beat Notre Dame 12 to 0 and demoralized the South Bend juggernaut in doing it. It has been said the Irish were overconfident, that they did not expect to find Pitt so tough after Ohio State had tied the Sutherland team, that the South Benders couldn't get going on the wet turf.

The reason why Pitt beat Notre Dame is that Pitt, a lighter team, played smarter football and played faster. Notre Dame had heard much of Pitt's passing attack—Heller to Reider to Heller. Pitt tried only two passes during the whole game. One of these was intercepted and the other was incomplete.

OUTSMARTED—

Notre Dame was outwitted and outplayed. They did not expect to find Pitt depending upon a running and plunging game. And while Notre Dame seemed to have every resource in manpower that it needed, there were some glaring faults in the game.

Pitt played the whole game, until that first touchdown in the last few minutes, with 11 men. That these men were trained to physical perfection goes without saying. Between the third and fourth periods, when the teams changed positions, the Pitt players skipped blithely to their side of the field. Notre Dame walked. In fact Notre Dame walked a little bit too much all afternoon.

COULD HAVE BEEN GOAT—

Mike Sebastian, who made the first touchdown, really became the hero of the game after that twist-run around the Irish right end. But he might as easily have been the goat, under other circumstances. In the first period he ran to get under a Notre Dame punt and touched it on his own 10-yard line, after which the ball bounded into the Pitt end zone. Sebastian tried to carry it out but was tackled there. There was some debate as to whether it was a touchback or a safety. At first it was announced the line. But if Sebastian's touch had helped the ball across the line, when it otherwise would not have gone that far, the play would be ruled a safety.

Two points might have changed the aspect of that game. Of course there is no telling what effect a score then would have had on each team. Anderson then ordered the members of the squad to read the papers on the eve of the game with Kansas University, at Lawrence, Kan. There might be some bad old beer stories in the Kansas City newspapers.

Anderson also had better go down and take a look at the playing field at Lawrence before the game.

At Pitt, I noticed, before the game, that the rain of Saturday morning had brought up many large and juicy fishing worms. These worms, no doubt, were trained by Dr. Sutherland to get under the feet of the Notre Dame players and slow them up.

Maybe Sutherland had sent word along to Kansas about his fishing worm defense. Coach Anderson could combat this either by ordering all the worms off the field, after the manner of St. Patrick driving the snakes out of Ireland, or he might tell his players to take pains not to step on the slippery little creatures.

Notre Dame, a loud outcry from Notre Dame alumni—plus the unofficial, professional and adopted alumni—went up for the scalp of Hunk Anderson, who succeeded Knute Rockne at Notre Dame.

That's what one football game will do for a couple of splendid coaches.

THE BOYS DID IT—

Dr. Sutherland praised his boys for their fine work. It seems that only one man, Halfback Heller, of the team that started against Notre Dame this year was on the starting team last year.

Meanwhile Hunk Anderson announced a drastic shakeup. Captain Paul Host was demoted from first string end. Nick Lukats was ousted from his regular halfback post. Ben Alexander was removed from center.

Anderson let his players know he thought Notre Dame was two or three touchdowns better than Pitt.

The Pitt defeat made the score three defeats against 10 victories in the 13 games for which Anderson has coached the team. The alumni, both official and unofficial pointed out that since four of those games were with the obvious pop-overs, Haskell and Drake, Anderson's record is not so hot.

THE NEWSPAPERS—

One of the reasons for defeat, as cited by Anderson, was unusual. Said he: "Added to the fact that Pitt had a splendid team and that Sebastian made a great run against us to score the first touchdown, I think we were beaten by the Pittsburgh papers. Pitt was a good team, but it wasn't as good as we can be if we are in the right frame of mind."

"After reading the Pittsburgh papers, our players couldn't make themselves realize that they were about to play one of the hardest games of the year. Pitt didn't seem to be able to outfit eleven pale-bodied men, according to the papers, and we were praised as a wonder team before we had even played a tough game. Then these kids heard that people were giving from 15 to 20 points on us in the betting."

"I don't think they were entirely fooled by these stories any more than I was but it was just impossible for them to go into that game in a vicious, fighting frame of mind. I know they are not a cocky bunch, but they are just kids and they fell for Pitt's bear stories."

HOW ABOUT WORMS—

Anderson then ordered the members of the squad to read the papers on the eve of the game with Kansas University, at Lawrence, Kan. There might be some bad old beer stories in the Kansas City newspapers.

FRANK AND AL JOIN HANDS IN FINAL APPEALS

Will Appear In Garden At New York For Last Rally

New York, Nov. 5 — (AP)—The political team of "Frank" and "Al"—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Governor Alfred E. Smith—reformed at the state convention a month ago, returned to New York City last night for a two-day presentation of their arguments for the election of a Democratic President and a state ticket.

The team began their metropolitan attack upon Republican candidates at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Tonight they will appear at a party rally in Madison Square Garden.

Both Roosevelt and Smith criticized President Hoover and the Republican party for conducting a "campaign of fear."

Roosevelt said he had pointed out and driven home "by straight argument, based on undisputed facts, that the administration of government under the present leadership in Washington has been distinguished by destruction, delay, deceit and despair."

Answering Republican arguments, which he described as "misrepresentations," regarding the Democratic position on "sound" money, the presidential nominee said:

Quoted Platform

"The democratic platform specifically declares 'we advocate a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards.' That is plain English. In discussing this platform on June 30th, I said, 'Sound money is an international necessity; not a domestic consideration for one nation alone.' The President is seeing visions of rubber dollars. This is only part of his campaign of fear."

And, asserted Roosevelt, "the President not only misrepresented me, but misquoted himself."

Continuing a reference to Mr. Hoover's speech in New York, Roosevelt said "The President stated:

"In my acceptance speech four years ago, I stated that in America today we are nearer a final triumph over poverty than in any land. The poorhouse has vanished from among us; we have not reached the goal, but given a chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years, we shall soon with the help of God be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation."

From 'The New Day'

Roosevelt said the Republican campaign book of 1928 and a book entitled "The New Day," containing the campaign speeches of President Hoover read "we have not yet reached the goal but given a chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years, we shall soon with the help of God be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation."

Roosevelt argued Hoover deleted the words "yet" and "soon" and the phrase "with the policies of the last eight years" which he contended were used "to indicate that the arrival of the millennium would be brought about only by a continuation of the policies of the Republican administrations preceding him."

Roosevelt will go to his Hyde Park home on Sunday and will return to New York City on Tuesday, after he votes, to receive returns from the election at national Democratic headquarters.

By HENRY GEHANT

Wilbur Vickerey was a business caller in Earville on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. George Thier motored to Dixon on Tuesday where they called upon friends.

John Zinke drove to Cherry on Wednesday where he procured a truckload of coal for customers.

The two nights of the bazaar, the chicken dinner on Sunday and the card party on Sunday night were each successes in themselves. Record breaking crowds were in attendance and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves even though they did not have the usual amount of money to spend. On Saturday night the opera house was just packed to capacity. The village board took it upon themselves to preserve order and did a very thorough job of it. The chicken dinner on Sunday attracted many from Dixon, Amboy, Mendota and Sublette as well as locally and there were some four hundred plates served. The card party in the evening wound up the festivities with thirty tables of euchre and five hundred. To those who assisted in anyway toward making the affair the success it was, the committee wishes to express sincere thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. David Burkard were here from Sublette on Sunday and spent the day at the home of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Michel.

Levi Lewis was up from the vicinity of Harmon on Tuesday calling upon old friends and former neighbors.

John Krahenbuhl was a business caller here from Rochelle on Tuesday.

The county ex-servicemen caravan stopped off here on Wednesday afternoon boosting its members upon both tickets for their various offices.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swartz and Mr. and Mrs. William Leizer were here from Mendota on Sunday calling on friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vaughan and daughter were over from Amboy on Sunday and attended the chicken dinner.

Globe-Trotting Mother and Daughter Return

Travel has proved more than a pastime for the Dan Sweeney family.

The artist and his wife started globe-trotting ten years ago in order that their daughter Peggy, then only 6, might have a really world-wide education. As a result, she studied geography, history, languages, art and music in a score of different countries, and early began to collect native costumes, jewelry and examples of handicraft in the places they visited. That collection now is valued at $150,000, and mother and daughter here are pictured as they arrived in New York the other day after gathering additional treasures of the Inca and pre-Inca civilizations in Peru. Mrs. Sweeney is a lecturer and her daughter's collection has been widely exhibited.

fashioned hus than it has for many years here. However the pranks were not of a serious nature and everyone was happy again when the obstructions in Johnson street were removed and traffic could proceed.

A number of our people motored to Sublette on Thursday where they attended the funeral of George Rice.

Charlie Clopine shelled and delivered a carload of new corn on Wednesday for which he received 14 cents per bushel. This is the first new corn that has gone to market in this locality, but no doubt much shelling will take place as the farmers are all running short of room.

Walter Elieser was up from Mendota on Thursday calling on business friends.

Matthew Maier and family motored to Franklin Park on Thursday where they spent the day visiting at the home of his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bailey.

The LaSalle ladies bowling team was here on Wednesday evening and played the town team consisting of Bert Long, James Biggar, George Halmaier, Alex Jeanblanc and Merle Pine. The ladies went home defeated by 384 pins. Junior Burkard is in the Mendota hospital following an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Derr and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott motored to Chicago on Sunday where they spent the day visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Neighbor.

Mr. and Mrs. R. U. Hattenhauer were here from Streator on Wednesday again looking into the possibility of locating a blacksmith shop here. Mr. Hattenhauer operated a shop at Minonk for twenty years and comes highly recommended.

Xavier Gehant was down from Dixon on Saturday and visited at the home of his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Auchstetter.

Otto Krenz motored to Batavia on Sunday and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Florian Walter. Edward Jones and his mother were down from Dixon on Sunday and visited with friends.

Edith Krahenbuhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krahenbuhl had the end of her thumb taken off on Saturday when her cotton flannel glove became fast in the chain of a corn elevator.

Frank Cooper was out from Chicago over the week-end and visited at the home of his brother-in-law Frank Yocum.

Oscar Krens was back from the vicinity of Earville on Wednesday calling upon friends and former neighbors.

The ladies of the domestic science club gathered at the home of Mrs. John Greyer on Wednesday afternoon where they cared for their usual program followed by luncheon, the hospitality of Mrs. Greyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzsimmons, Attorney Grover Gehant and Mrs. Gehant, Circuit Clerk Edwin Rosecrans and Mrs. Rosecrans, States Attorney and Mrs. Mark Keller were down from Dixon on Sunday and attended the dinner at the school hall.

Gail Krueger who returned home after a year's sojourn in California was down from Rockford on Sunday calling on friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Becker and Mrs. Charles Becker were here on Sunday and visited at the home of friends.

C. A. Boyle was down from Paw Paw on Tuesday looking after affairs pertaining to his implement business.

Mrs. Lawrence Stihell and Miss Alice Halboth were up from Mendota on Tuesday and spent the day visiting at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Fassig.

Harvey Cook was down from Compton on Wednesday looking after the business of the local depot.

Mrs. Catherine Kessel and daughter Miss Eva were here from Maytown on Wednesday and spent

New Cold-Control Plan Is Success

"More money to spend—and more time in which to enjoy it!" That is the unusual promise of a brand new plan of economy. Another unique feature is that folks who follow it don't have to deny themselves the things they either want or need. On the contrary, all they give up or cut down on is something they neither want nor need—common colds.

That, in effect, is the promise of the new Vicks Plan for better Control-of-Colds—developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub and widely tested in clinics and some home use last season. Results of these clinical tests have just been announced.

Over 3,500 people—in schools, colleges and homes—participated in the tests. For comparative results, these people were divided into two equal groups. One group followed the Plan—the other group did not. The results, which follow, are really quite amazing.

Those following the Plan had less than half as many colds. The colds they did develop lasted only about half as long as the national average duration of colds—as found a few years by the U. S. Public Health Service. The savings to this group—in money and loss of time from work—were more than half. The amount of such savings possible is indicated in the fact that these two items of the costs of colds—money and time—amount to over a billion dollars a year for the country as a whole.—Adv.

LAUGHS AT DEATH LONDON—Duncan Neale made arrangements for his death—and then went out and got himself married. He arranged his own funeral, bought his tombstone, supervised its erection and affixed to it a tablet to his memory. Then, although 70 years of age, he went and married the sweetheart of his boyhood days.

HOOVER TELLS INSIDE STORY OF DAWES BANK

had been weakened more than the others by these panic stricken depositors. Without assistance that bank would be unable to open on the following Monday morning.

"The failure of this bank to continue business would have added to the panic which threatened to bear down on other banks in that city and spread in turn to other cities and involve many trust and insurance companies. The immediate problem was to provide before Monday morning a sufficient sum of money to quiet unreasoning fear and give absolute assurance that funds available to pay every depositor in full without question.

"In the course of inquiry into the condition of the bank it was found that they had ample securities which in normal times could have paid out their depositors, leaving a large margin. But the securities could not be instantly sold at any price or at least at a price which would produce sufficient to pay all depositors and they could not collect instantly from the notes.

"Many Small Depositors
"In the inquiry into the condition of the bank it developed that had 122,000 depositors, of whom 105,000 were savings depositors, that the average of the savings deposits was only $140. A majority of them were women and children; that the safety of these depositors could not be separated from the other depositors of the bank.

"It was found that there were 17,000 commercial depositors, most of whom were men and women engaged in small businesses, whose deposits represented the money necessary to meet their pay rolls, the purchasing of their materials, and the discharge of obligations to others incurred in the course of business. Jeopardy to them meant that many thousands of men and women in factories and stores would be discharged into untold hardship.

"But these were not all who were dependent upon the maintenance of this bank. It was found that among the 17,000 commercial deposits 755 were country banks, the great majority of them in towns of less than 5,000 people. If this bank should fail many of these country banks must fail.

"Widespread Influence
"In the complex system of our economic life things that on the surface seem unrelated are in fact under the surface inextricably tied together. A farmer in a small town in an agricultural state might feel no concern for the safety of this important bank in a great city. The widow with a small deposit in a small bank of a town of another state might know of no relationship between her bank and the city bank.

"But the farmer in one state and the widow in another, even though they did not know it, had a direct financial stake in the fate of the city bank. For the country banks must conduct business with the city banks in the ordinary course of trade, and must carry their reserves with the city banks in order that they may draw interest upon them, which they in turn pay to their depositors.

"Now, it was found on examination that these 755 depositing banks had 6,500,000 depositors scattered over fifteen states. But that is not all. There were 21,000 other banks scattered throughout the country which had deposits in the city bank. For the country banks were more than 20,000,000 depositors, and they involved widows, orphans, workers, insurance companies, manufacturers, and merchants.

"Mass of Borrowers Involved
"And in addition to all this there was the position of the borrowers from all this mass of banks. If this city bank should fail there must be immediate demand for the payment of the money due from its borrowers.

"If any of the banks dependent upon it should fail their borrowers in turn would be compelled to make immediate payment of money due and to realize upon their property at a time when property could not be turned into cash at anything like its real value.

"In this city bank and in the 755 banks who carried their reserve deposits in this city bank there were 695,000 men and women and institutions owing money on their notes. They were scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land. They were on the farms in the cities, the villages and hamlets. Most of all, these groups of people were unaware of their danger. They were in their homes and in their churches, concerned with their own affairs—but they were not being forgotten.

"Working Against Time
"The men who had conducted this bank over a great number of years were men of high esteem in the whole community. To their credit be it said that their chief concern was the preservation of thousands or millions of people from disaster. They were not asking aid for themselves.

"The investigations and the conversations occupied many hours of continuous communication from these two cities to Washington and back again. Remember, this was on Sunday when the normal processes of business were difficult to conduct. Countless difficulties were encountered and solutions worked out. They were working against time.

"Finally, at 3 hours after Sunday midnight, the task was completed.

pleted. The assets had been valued by the examiners of the Reconstruction corporation. The banks of the two cities joined in lending assistance and the Reconstruction Corporation agreed to furnish a sufficient sum to assure that this bank could open without fear and meet every demand of its depositors.

"At 10 o'clock on Monday all banks opened for business as usual. Public announcement was made that ample funds were on hand to pay every depositor. As had been anticipated, immediately excitement and panic subsided and confidence was restored. The crowds melted away—deposits began to return. The situation was saved, not only in this bank, but in the other banks which had been subject to heavy withdrawals.

"The loans offered by the cooperating banks and the Reconstruction corporation were never fully called for and have since been largely repaid, and every danger in connection with that episode is now over."

"Gives Praise to Dawes
"The central human figure of that bank was a man who had served his country for 40 years in many high capacities, who in recent years had been absent from the country in a position of first importance to the American people.

"That is the story of the Dawes bank in Chicago. You know the use our political opponents have made of this incident. They ignore the fact that Gen. Dawes resigned from the Reconstruction Finance corporation three weeks before on his first news that attacks were being made on the bank with which his name had long been associated. He resigned to try to save that bank without any on the Reconstruction Finance corporation, of which he had been a director.

"He knew and appreciated the use that would be made in this campaign of such calumny. He sought to avoid it.

"And you should know that when that Sunday meeting started, Gen. Dawes stated that he could not bring himself to ask for assistance from the corporation in which he had so lately been a director.

"But it was upon the insistence of the two Democratic members of the Reconstruction Finance corporation board, sitting in the Federal Reserve bank meeting in Chicago, and upon the insistence of the leading Democratic banker of Chicago, who was then mentioned as a candidate for the presidency of the United States, and upon the insistence in New York City of the leading Democratic banker and a leading Democratic manufacturer, also mentioned for the presidency, upon insistence of the other Democratic members of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, that this was a case of national necessity and those men then and there jointly offered to take the full responsibility for the action.

"Acted as Loyal Citizens
"These men acted not only because they were Democrats or Republicans but because they were loyal citizens of the United States. The situation demanded broad vision and comprehensive understanding of the problem, instant decision, bold and courageous action. Only by this was a major disaster averted. And I may tell you that not only were these loans adequately secured, but in the ordinary course of business they are being paid off.

"The constant misrepresentation of this episode for political purposes by Democratic politicians is a slander upon men of their own party as well as a cruel injustice to Gen. Dawes. It is a characteristic example of the character of this campaign. It is an insult to the American people to substitute this sort of political action for competent discussion of the grave issues which lie before our country.

"And I may tell you that this is but one of six similar episodes in great financial centers in the United States, the direct result of the shocks and fears which we received from the collapse of foreign nations.

"After telling of the historic negotiations which led up to the moratorium proposal, the President said:

"Effects of Moratorium
"I know that the proposal of the moratorium diverted the entire current of thought and changed the history of what otherwise would have been a tragedy to the whole of civilization."

"At the very outset of his address, the President said the Democratic party is 'not a campaign of issues; it is a campaign of avoidances.'"

"From the congressional elections in 1930 down to the present moment the strategy of the Democratic party is 'not a campaign of issues; it is a campaign of avoidances.'"

"The man who made it was myself personally. They express no gratitude that in my manufacture of this world crisis I have let this

BEGIN HERE TODAY
STAN BALL accuses ASPER DELLO, timber king, of having men who go to sleep on his activities. Ball says he is making a check. Delo says he will see personally that he does not. Upon leaving the office Ball rescues DONA, Delo's daughter, from kidnappers. He tells her his name is STANLEY BLACK and slips away.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with DONA, goes with her to Three Rivers to get her into a safe place. He tells her that he has a marriage certificate filed out, which he hopes to use. Ball is accused of killing a ranger and later of wounding Delo from ambush. In order to get Delo to leave, DONA shows him the certificate and he thinks them married.

DONA is captured by Ball while attempting to shoot him. She takes refuge in a safe place. ASPER DELLO, timber boss, rescues her and captures Ball by surprising him. Swergin takes Ball in and on the way sends DONA ahead. A mob attempts to lynch Ball, but DONA returns and frees him. She rides his horse into camp and he comes for it, promising to leave the country.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

see Swergin coming up the steps. He was hatless and his clothes were badly torn. It was clear he was looking for her, and she waited for him to speak.

"Ball and your old man just met up on the ridge," Swergin began with cruel bluntness.

The color left DONA's face and she gripped the arm of her chair. "What happened?" she demanded weakly. "The old man is shot badly."

Swergin led her. DONA did not cry out but two big tears rolled out from under her long lashes and fell on her clenched hands.

"How could he do it?" she choked. "If you can stand to ride up there, you ought to go." Swergin spoke with a trace of feeling. "I don't think there is a chance to move him from the cabin I put him in."

"What happened to Ball?" DONA could not keep the question back. "Got away like he always has," Swergin snarled.

"Go and get a horse and I'll try to ride up with you," DONA spoke weakly. The shock had been almost more than she could bear.

Swergin left the porch and strode toward the corral. When his back was squarely turned a flash of light spread over his heavy features.

At the corral he found no attendant and had to do the saddling himself. This delayed him a few minutes.

DONA sat staring out across the clearing with unseeing eyes. She was torn by conflicting emotions. Stan Ball was a traitor.

Worse, he was a fiend. At that moment she felt she could stand again under the tree on the ridge above and watch him hang without a touch of sympathy.

She wished Dudley was at her side. He had never been on hand when she really needed him and she wondered if it was always to be that way. He furnished a very thin barrier against the hurts that came unasked.

Swergin was leading two horses up the path. DONA watched him come and a feeling of loathing crept over her despite the anxiety that tugged at her heart. Like a hulking ape Swergin moved up the hill, his long arms dangling by his sides and his massive chin sticking out as he strode along. It was terrible to have no one else to fight for you but a man like Swergin.

The timber boss dropped the reins in the padded saddle before the steps of the main building and faced DONA.

"You'll have to carry me down to the horse," DONA said weakly. Swergin grinned and took a step forward. Suddenly he halted, his feet planted wide. The grin faded and his eyes began to bulge, while one big arm slid to the gun holster at his hip.

DONA stared at him in surprise. It was plain that Swergin was seeing a ghost or worse. Her eyes traveled with his gaze and she saw Stan Ball standing at the corner of the building. Both his hands were held wide from his side and his eyes were fixed upon the timber boss's face. He had not seen DONA on the porch.

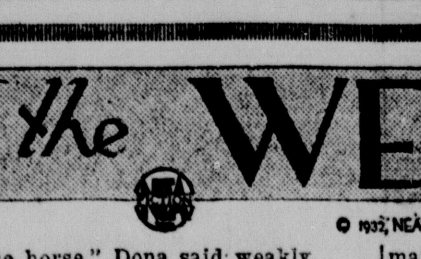

"I came to get you, Swergin," he snapped. "Go for your gun." Swergin already was pulling at his holster. Both men bent forward and two guns cleared almost instantly. Streaky flames spurted as their six guns roared. DONA could not take her eyes from Stan's face. It was so hard and cold. After the crashing report he was still standing there, his gun smoking in his hand. Slowly DONA forced her eyes from him to where Swergin had been standing. The timber boss lay on his face in a crumpled heap in the dust.

SUDDENLY DONA's panic swept away from her and she became a tigress defending her own. Ball had been as ruthless as a vandal. He had persecuted and killed without staying his hand. Reaching back she jerked from its peg the rifle Asper had left out for her to fix as a souvenir and pumped a cartridge into it. Leveling it as steadily as her weakened condition would permit she fired blankly at Stan. He turned around, half facing her, and slowly crumpled up to lie almost touching Swergin. DONA covered her face with her hands and it seemed Stan had smiled at her as he went down. She was certain he had seen and known her.

DONA fainted away for a minute but came back to consciousness fighting for control of herself. Her eyes lifted reluctantly to the padded saddle outside the porch. The two men were just where they had fallen. Slowly DONA slid from her chair and made her way down the steps.

Passing the still form of Swergin she bent over Stan Ball and lifted his head to her lap. Tears blinded her eyes and she rocked gently back and forth.

"Why did you do it?" she whispered. "Oh, why did you have to come back like this!" Stan did not stir, his eyes re-

STATE HOSPITAL LAUNDRY IS ONE OF BUSY PLACES

60,000 Pounds Of Washing Goes Through
It Each Week

The laundry at the Dixon state hospital is one of the most interesting departments of the big institution north of the city, for there 60,000 pounds of apparel, bedding, rugs, curtains, etc., are washed each week. The building is a large, one-story brick structure of attractive design, with light, heat and ventilation well balanced for the comfort, safety and health of the workers and for the speedy completion of the work under the able supervision of Edward Langan, who has seven assistants to oversee the work done by 78 male and 55 female wards, who labor from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M. six days a week.

Supt. Langan is an inspiration to these wards, his patient direction of their labors making them feel they are his boys and girls.

Truck drivers pick up the baskets and bags of wash at the many buildings of the institution, and after being dumped at the receiving end of the laundry the wash sorted, clothing of patients and attendants being kept separate.

The laundry is equipped with six large washing machines, on which are automatic safety devices to eliminate all danger; four big automatic safety power wringers, which take from 65 to 70 per cent of the moisture out of the clothing; stationary bowls for hand washing; a 900-gallon machine to make liquid soap out of soap chips and washing soda; two large flat-work ironers; four tumblers; one dry press; two drying machines in which hot or cold air is forced through the garments; 36 electric irons and three clothes presses. Each patient has an individual slip, showing also his building, ward or cottage.

After all work has been washed and ironed the table linen, etc. is packed in boxes and returned to the proper building. A large surplus is carried out of which clean linen is issued for soiled, but no new linen is issued except to replace that condemned by the foreman of the repair department. In the linen department is a card index system showing what clothing, etc., each patient has at all times.

The report of the mending department for the month of September shows the following articles repaired: 73 blankets, 150 dish towels, 14 roller towels, 12 hand towels, 64 bath towels, 195 table cloths, 171 pillow cases, 1208 sheets, 614 spreads and 73 laundry bags.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Editor—I am writing to people of Dixon and surrounding country. Mr. Hoover is not easily understood. I was called to support him four years ago by vision. Hoover was elected, thank God for that. He is for peace, not war. Peace costs money. War costs blood and money. The bonus deal. The constitution says you have a right to redress if brought in lawful and dignified manner. Hoover was right, soldiers were wrong. Rich men withdrew their money to beat Hoover, an intrigue by men who wanted to be president. When he tried to help farmer and workman all wanted help and none got it.

I wrote letters to President and he answered. But that is not all. He did what I asked him to do. I entered all war games with him and cabinet. Everyone was anxious to keep out of war. Learned men said boycott Japan. I said no. Hoover sent cablegram to Geneva refusing to enter boycott. Hoover fearless, honest, bold and courageous. He is for all people.

Yours truly,

20 TEETH—$73,000!
LOS ANGELES—The big question in Superior Court is: "Are 20 teeth worth $73,000?" Mrs. Sarah Arundel sued L. A. Turk for $20,000, arguing that she lost 20 teeth in a collision between her car and that of Turk's. Mrs. Bessie L. Galbraith sued the Los Angeles Junction Railway at the same time for $53,000 for the loss of 16 teeth in a crash between her car and a locomotive.
